KID M'COY'S WIFE HAS ELOPED TO JAPAN WITH THE PUGILIST'S BEST FRIEND.

He Is Ralph Thompson, a Wealthy Syracuse Banker, and Was the Kid's Pupil in "Physical Culture."

KID M'COY'S WIFE.

SARATOGA, Aug. 15.—"Kid" McCoy, the pugilist, is convinced that he is in the class with Lord Francis Hope, whose wife, May Yale, eloped to Japan with Putnam Bradley Strong, his three-time wife. Julia Selby, has eloped to Japan with the "Kid's" former friend, banker and boarder, Ralph Thompson, of Syracuse.

When the "Kid" returned to his country home near Saratoga from Europe a short time ago, he found a deserted domicile. Servants informed him that Thompson, who had been living there, taking a course of treatment in physical culture from the "Kid," had gone away with Mrs. McCoy. The pugilist understood that his wife had gone to Atlantic City and did not appear to be deeply concerned.

A letter from a friend in San Francisco informs McCoy that his beautiful wife sailed on the Coptic from there a week ago yesterday for Japan. She was accompanied by Thompson. On the passenger list of the ship the pair figured as husband and wife. The "Kid" is quite incensed at details in the letter.

For instance, Mrs. McCoy, while in San Francisco awaiting the sailing of the Coptic, kept quiet. But just before the ship sailed she sent for a newspaper reporter and told him all about herself and what she was going to do. She informed the young man of the press that she and Mr. Thompson were bound for the Land of Flowers and expected to remain there. Her reason for leaving McCoy, so she gave it, was because he abused her.

McCoy probably will secure a divorce. Mrs. McCoy has divorced him twice, and they were married the third time recently by a justice of the peace in Hoboken. The woman is well known as a chorus girl in New York. She is extremely handsome. Thompson has money of all kinds.

MORE VACATION SCHOOLS WOULD MEAN FEWER POLICE

Commissioner Partridge Segs and Learns a Lot on an East Side Tour.

"If more vacation schools were established throughout the city the police force could be considerably reduced," declared Police Commissioner Partridge after a four-hour tour of inspection on the east side.

The Commissioner and Chief Inspector Cortright, attired in citizen's clothes, went to the east side to see the condition existing there. No attempt was made to find delinquent policemen, and Commissioner Partridge stated that he was not "leuthing" or doing "rubber-sock" work, such as was done by President Roosevelt when he was a member of the Board of Police Commissioners.

The Commissioner and Inspector Cortright inspected the Madison, Eldridge and East Fifth street stations from cellar to roof, and ordered reforms at the Madison street station. He found that the number of children on the streets required the presence of a larger number of policemen than would otherwise be necessary.

After leaving the station-houses the Commissioner and the Inspector visited the Vacation School near Essex market.

He was shown about the school by one of the instructors and was amazed at the work being done.

"If the public only knew of the good accomplished by these schools they would be established all over the city," said Commissioner Partridge. "I saw thousands of children, it appeared to me, to be thoroughly enjoying themselves under the care of competent instructors. If there were more of these schools the police force could be much smaller. The children are taught obedience and regard for the rights of others."

"Why, there were so many children in that school that I did not believe it was possible that there were any remaining on the streets, yet after leaving there the streets were literally swarming with children. Then I realized how few there were who could attend the school, because of the lack of room for them."

Commissioner Partridge was greatly pleased with his trip through the east side, and it is possible that he will make others in the near future. He said he had learned more of the crowded conditions by his trip than he had ever known before.

Reports that the Hotel Plaza is about to be torn down were to-day denied by Mr. Hammond, the proprietor.

Mr. Hammond, who has just returned from a European trip, says that many letters have been received from all parts of the country asking if the hotel was to be demolished.

"The report," he added, "seems to have been given wide circulation. This is wrong. My lease on the building has two years yet to run, and the new owners are ready to give me another lease for that period of five years when the present one expires."

The hotel building was recently purchased by the New York Life Insurance Company.
